To70 and Energy in Process announce strategic partnership

Today, leading aviation consultants To70 and air cargo consultants Energy in Process have announced their strategic cooperation partnership.

To70 – established 20 years ago in the Netherlands with a global presence through 14 offices – specialises in the optimisation of airspace and airport related infrastructure.

Energy in Process – founded in 2017, but with over 20 years of experience in airport and air cargo management – focuses on strategic air cargo consulting and process optimisation.

Ruud Ummels (To70)

“Through the cooperation with Energy in Process, we expand our geographical presence in Germany as well as broaden the scope of our consulting activities. If the current (Covid-19) crisis teaches us anything, it is that air cargo is an important integral activity within the aviation portfolio. Through our partnership, we have immediate access to broad-based knowledge and experience in this field”.

Franz van Hessen (Energy in Process)

„The cooperation with To70 provides us with knowledge, resources and a network that would otherwise have taken years to acquire. For us this is a major steppingstone in achieving our goal of becoming one of the leading specialised air cargo consultants”.

“Besides the obvious synergies in sharing resources and knowledge, we share a no-nonsense, down to earth company culture. We are convinced, that significant optimisation can be achieved by better use of resources and existing infrastructure and, as such, does not require major investments or - policy adjustments”.
